I think with all that has occurred (Corps worked on this for a few years before sending over, we have now had it for a bit, and the letter from DOJ while the Corps was the lead) it would be best to have in writing. But if there is some reason not to send a letter, I guess we could try to schedule a call. Or do both. But I think that a letter is the best way to go.

Morning!

I'm going to reply to Mita, below. But first, can you help me remember any specific reasons for this case? I think with it in writing, we avoid confusion.

Thanks,

Michele

So why are we doing it in a formal letter rather than a discussion?

Why are we sending a letter rather than a proposed AOC with injunctive relief?

Angela,

Please find the attached (link to folder below) letter for review, routing, and signature. I have included a link to the shared folder and provided permissions for all on the routing slip. You should be able to make any necessary changes and save to the folder and then route, providing the link below, to the next person. Please let me know if you have any questions or need me to do anything. If it is easier, I can route to the attorney once you have completed your review. Just let me know how best to proceed.
